A Persian Tale; or, Little things may be Useful. There was once a prince, who, having been much displeased with one of his nobles, determined to punish him. The prince commanded that he should be shut up in a high tower. Into this tower there was only one entrance, which was walled up immediately after the nobleman had been placed there.-Thus all hope of escape seemed to be cut off, and the unhappy man was left to perish. Inside the tower there was a long winding staircase, by which the prisoner reached the top. While look-ing down from there, he observed his wife, who had come, indulging a faint hope that she might be able, by some means or other, to aid her husband in Avail to make a gentleman. escaping his place of confinement.— On inquiring if she could be of any service to him, he replied:

"Oh! yes; go and procure a black beetle, a little grease, a skein of silk, a skein of twine, and a long rope." The poor wife hastened to obtain what her husband asked for-wondering, no doubt, at the strangeness of his request. She soon returned, furnished with the things. Her husband then directed her to put the grease on the heetle's head, to fasten the silk to its hind leg, the twine to the silk, and, the rope to the twine, and then place the beetle on the wall of the tower. On being set at liberty on the wall, the beetle, smelling the grease on its head, and not being able to discover where it was, crept up the tower in search of it, till it arrived at the top. The noble-man caught it, and, taking the silk from its hind leg, carefully drew it up .-When he came to the end of the silk. he found the twine, and next he came to the rope. Fastening this to a crook. he let himself down, and thus made his escape.

A Poetical Elopement.

[From the Hudson (New Jersey) Register.] A young married woman living in he eastern part of this county retreated from her home in a most masterly manner, accompanied by an amorous Lothario, whose ideas of the sacredness marriage must have been slightly muddled. She left, for the consolation of her husband, a few lines of very touching and powerful poetry, of which the following is a copy:
